

Sinclair Broadcasting's plan to air a one-sided, smear piece on John Kerry shortly before a heated election is simply not responsible, and not reasonable. Certainly, in a democracy, differing viewpoints should not only be encouraged, but are essential to the effective operation of government. The fact that this mega-corporation is running a piece to suit its political interests is a real slap in the face to the listening public, who deserve, or rather who need, to hear all the information available when deciding upon a thing such as the leader of the free world. As the FCC, I feel it is your job to make sure that the public airwaves are operated for the benefit of the public, and not the benefit of corporate earnings.

As a citizen of this great country, I ask that you please address this shameful situation, to see that democracy, not the executives at Sinclair, benefit from radio programming.
